Tam—A reminder that YCCD values you less than outside consultants.

Chevrons—Years of graduate school result in climbing down the ladder of success.

Mortarboard—Symbolizing the hard reality that cohort agreements are meaningless.

Hood—Understanding that “student success” is a YCCD punchline. The District’s real interest is the faculty serving as the “rainmaker,” but giving us a disproportionate amount of the revenue WE generate.

Robe—Recognizing that your hard work earning your degrees has resulted in employment in a District which works you beyond professional and ethical standards.
